DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

I. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 4-5 and 9-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Kawamoto et al., US No. 5,511,798 ("Kawamoto").

1. Kawamoto discloses a device (FIG. 3B) comprising: an I/O shield (7) covering a housing aperture formed in the housing; an element (5) extending through the I/O shield (7) into the housing (6); and a sealing layer (FIG. 6) disposed to seal the housing aperture and to form an electrical contact with the edges of the housing aperture (FIG. 3B).

The seal is located between the I/O shield and the housing (see FIG. 3B)

2. The device according to claim 1, wherein the element is an electrical terminal or an operating element (FIG. 5).

4. The device according to claim 1, wherein the housing has exterior wall surfaces, and the electrical contact with the sealing layer is formed at the exterior wall surfaces (FIG. 5).

5. The device according to claim 1, wherein the housing has interior wall surfaces, and the electrical contact with the sealing layer is formed at the interior wall surfaces (FIG. 5).

9. The device according to claim 1, wherein the sealing layer has dimensions exceeding dimensions of the housing aperture (resulting in the gasket being compressed between the surface, FIG. 3B).

10. The device according to claim 1, wherein the I/O shield has a U-shaped form (see curved bottom).

11. The device according to claim 1, wherein the I/O shield has a trough-shaped form (see top end, FIG. 5).

Response to Arguments

II. Applicant argues that the Kawamoto does not disclose the sealing layer being formed of a readily malleable electrically conductive material. Examiner disagrees, the coating of Kawamoto also comprises the sealing layer, the fact that inner portion of the seal is formed of a urethane foam is immaterial. There is nothing in applicants claim that requires the entire seal to be formed from readily malleable material.
